Terex® Transfer Masts let you do more with less. Connect any two tower crane systems from Terex and/or our legacy brands, Peiner and Comedil, to form a new versatile and productive tower crane system – and you'll gain the benefits of both systems and more. It truly is a case of the whole being greater than the sum of the parts.

The four models shown here are the latest additions to the full Terex® Transfer Mast line, giving you even more choices to meet your exact needs.

- ▶ Improved freestanding capabilities
- ▶ Reduced assembly time – no need for anchoring collars
- ▶ Wide range of combinations using varying tower sections and upper parts help meet the exact needs of the job
- ▶ Higher return on investment through improved utilization of existing tower system sections in inventory

WORKS FOR YOU.™

The Possibilities Are Almost Endless

Because Terex® transfer masts let you combine Flat Top, Luffing Jib and Hammerhead tower cranes, you'll have more flexibility at the job site. Transfer masts can be positioned between two different tower elements or directly on the lower turntable. Connect any two tower systems from Terex and/or our legacy brands, Peiner and Comedil, to form one element to gain the benefits of both systems.

HD23-TS212 tower combination with the transfer mast positioned between the two systems. This is done to increase freestanding capabilities.

Here the transfer mast is positioned between the TS212 tower and the HD slewing unit.
